

Special Issue on Research on Cosmetic and Skin Care

Call for Papers

Cosmetics are care substances used to enhance the appearance or odor of the human body. They are generally mixtures of chemical compounds, some being derived from natural sources, many being synthetic. Cosmetics include skin-care creams, lotions, powders, perfumes, lipsticks, fingernail and toe nail polish, eye and facial makeup, towelettes, permanent waves, colored contact lenses, hair colors, hair sprays and gels, deodorants, hand sanitizer, baby products, bath oils, bubble baths, bath salts, butters and many other types of products. A subset of cosmetics is called "make-up," which refers primarily to coloring products intended to alter the user's appearance. Many manufacturers distinguish between decorative cosmetics and care cosmetics. The goal of this special issue is to provide a platform for scientists and academicians all over the world to promote, share, and discuss various new issues and developments in the area of Research on Cosmetic and Skin Care.

In this special issue, we invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles that explore Research on Cosmetic and Skin Care.

Authors should read over the journal's Authors' Guidelines carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the "Special Issue" under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field "Special Issue — Research on Cosmetic and Skin Care" should be chosen during your submission.

According to the following timetable:

Submission Deadline	December 31st, 2013
