

Special Issue on Gynecology and Pediatrics Nursing

Call for Papers

Pediatric nursing is a specialization of the nursing profession that focuses on pediatrics and the medical care of children, from infancy to the teenage years. This is an important field because the health of children is distinct from that of adults due to the growth and development that occurs throughout childhood. The goal of this special issue is to provide a platform for scientists and academicians all over the world to promote, share, and discuss various new issues and developments in this area of Gynecology and Pediatrics Nursing.

In this special issue, we invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles that explore Gynecology and Pediatrics Nursing. In this special issue, potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Perimarital health care
- Technical guidance on family planning
- Child growth and development
- Nursing of children with nutritional diseases
- Nursing of children with circulatory system diseases
- Nursing of children with urinary diseases
- Nursing of children with infectious diseases
- Pediatric first aid and intensive care
- Nursing of patients with common gynecological diseases

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue –Gynecology and Pediatrics Nursing” should be selected during your submission.
