

Special Issue on Child Psychology

Call for Papers

Child Psychology is a branch of psychology focusing on children from prenatal development through adolescence. Child psychology deals not only with how children grow physically, but with their mental, emotional and social development as well. It encompasses a wide range of researches, from the genetic influences on behavior to the social pressures on development. It is important to understand how children grow, think and behave, from which parents and professionals working with children can be better prepared to help the kids in their care.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring child psychology. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Research methods of child psychology
- Early child education
- School life and psychology
- Child psychopathology and prevent methods (child, adolescence, youth)
- Analysis of child psychology (social, cultural and socioeconomic context, etc.)
- Psychology development in child (baby, child, adolescence, youth)
- Child mental health (happiness, objective, resilience and quality of life, etc.)
- Case study

Authors should read over the journal's Authors' Guidelines carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field “Special Issue - Child Psychology” should be chosen during your submission.

According to the following timetable:

Submission Deadline	June 26th, 2014
