

Special Issue on Family Psychology

Call for Papers

Family psychology is a branch of psychology that focuses on various issues related to the family. Family psychologists are responsible for a wide variety of tasks and roles, which include providing therapy and assessment for children with mental illness; helping improve the relationships between husbands and wives and between parents and children; and dealing with other mental, behavioral, and emotional disorders that occur within families.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Family Psychology. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Blended families
- Child abuse
- Couples therapy
- Domestic violence
- Marital relationships
- Parent-child relations
- Postpartum depression
- Remarriage

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - Family Psychology” should be selected during your submission.

Special Issue Timetable:

Submission Deadline	November 22nd, 2017
Publication Date	January 2018

Guest Editor:

For further questions or inquiries, please contact Editorial Assistant at psych@scirp.org.