

Special Issue on Depression and Anxiety

Call for Papers

Depression is a state of low mood and aversion to activity that can affect a person's thoughts, behavior, feelings, and sense of well-being. Anxiety is an emotion characterized by an unpleasant state of inner turmoil, often accompanied by nervous behavior, such as pacing back and forth, somatic complaints, and rumination. These two moods affect human health and social behaviors in many aspects.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Depression and Anxiety. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Diagnostic evaluation and psychometrics
- Treatment and prevention
- Counseling and psychotherapy
- Cognitive-behavioral therapy
- Neuromodulation treatments
- Prevalence and development
- Depression, anxiety and chronic disease
- Patterns of emotions
- Bipolar disorder
- Obsessive-compulsive disorder
- PTSD
- Suicide
- Cognitive impairment
