Dear Mr. Gorsky and Ms. Widmer,

Black Women for Wellness, our colleagues, allies and now over 200 organizations seeking the removal of toxic Johnson & Johnson products aggressively marketed to Black women are deeply disappointed by the patronizing and dismissive response from Ms. Widmer to our July 8 request that your company take its responsibility seriously to protect women around the world from unsafe chemical exposures.

Johnson & Johnson issued a statement stating its solidarity with the Movement for Black Lives/ Black Lives Matter. Just prior to that, Johnson & Johnson announced it would discontinue sales of its talc-based Baby Powder in North America but continue to sell it globally and allow retailers to sell down existing inventory.

Is Johnson & Johnson's statement of solidarity with Black lives simply a public relations stunt? Our request stands:

- a. Fully remove Johnson & Johnson talc-based baby powder from the entire global market – meaning both in North America and abroad;
- b. Safely dispose of your existing inventory of baby powder in North America: Don't simply shift your marketing and sales to low-income or marginalized communities domestically or abroad;
- c. Cease production of the product globally.

Your company states it is “committed to changing the trajectory of health for humanity” and that it is concerned about the safety of its products, including cosmetic talc, yet Johnson & Johnson plans to continue selling talc-based products abroad, even as past investigations (including a 2019 FDA investigation) have uncovered trace amounts of asbestos in your talc, and women have suffered from use of this product. Moreover, your own internal Johnson & Johnson document demonstrates that you expressly and grossly targeted Black and Brown women with your marketing, even as concerns increased about cancer risk linked to talc powder.

Asbestos contaminated talc should never be taken lightly. Yet your response ignores and dismisses thousands of ovarian cancer victims. Asbestos has been classified as a known human carcinogen by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, and the International Agency for Research on Cancer. According to the U.S. Occupational Safety and Health Administration \(OSHA\), “There is no ‘safe’ level of asbestos exposure for any type of asbestos fiber.”

Johnson & Johnson has built and enjoys a positive reputation that is of immense value. Unfortunately many Black & Brown people are wary of medical and pharmaceutical companies due to historical patterns of exploitation and abuse. BWW is raising this concern with intention of supporting your brand and its reputation as you walk the talk giving attention to the safety, health and well being of Black women, women of color and workers globally. BWW is well aware that it is incumbent upon transnational corporations to lift values, ethics and practices across governments and borders that protect human lives.

In the absence of federal cosmetic safety regulation, you have an ethical responsibility to make decisions that will benefit people over profits. Your talc-based Baby Powder is restricted in Europe, and you have agreed to discontinue selling it in North America, but we are concerned that your plan to continue to sell it globally will continue to expose women of color abroad to asbestos.

If you truly stand in solidarity with the Black Lives Matter movement, we demand that you stop making this product, stop selling this product, and dispose of it properly. We have confidence your company can use its strategic talents and vast resources to produce safe products that do not harm women of color and are not sold at the expense of the safety of women's lives.

Black Women for Wellness, our partners and allies who now represent over 200 organizations from across the globe ask that you honor your stated morals and ethics and valuing the lives of women, Black women, women of color.

With great sincerity
