

Scripps Howard Fund and Institute for Nonprofit News offer paid journalism internships

Dec. 9, 2024

CINCINNATI – The Scripps Howard Fund is partnering with the Institute for Nonprofit News to offer 13 paid internships to journalism students in 2025.

The Scripps Howard Fund created the internship program in 2023, aimed at giving students of diverse backgrounds high-quality, hands-on experience. The Institute for Nonprofit News \(INN\) leads the 400-newsroom INN Network.

New in 2025, INN and the Fund will also partner with the Ida B. Wells Society for Investigative Reporting to support two of its 13 paid internships. The Ida B. Wells Society for Investigative Reporting is dedicated to increasing and retaining reporters and editors of color in the field of investigative reporting.

The selected news organizations will host and hire college students and recent college graduates for 10-week internships.

The nonprofit newsrooms selected for the 10-week internships are:

- Athens County Independent
- Carolina Public Press
- KOSU
- Oklahoma Watch
- Shasta Scout
- South Dakota News Watch
- The Current GA*
- The Daily Yonder
- The Maine Monitor*
- The Shoestring
- Wisconsin Watch
- Spotlight Delaware
- Louisville Public Media

The Maine Monitor and The Current GA internships will be supported by the Fund, INN and the Ida B. Wells Society for Investigative Reporting.*

Applications for the INN/Fund/Ida B. Wells internship close on Jan. 10. Apply here.

Applications for the INN/Fund internships close on Jan. 31. Apply here.

Once selected, an intern can apply to the Fund for an additional grant to help with housing, relocation and other expenses to support their ability to accept an internship. Grant applications will open in the spring.
