Hi,

thank you - we're including the terms into our search. Then we will continue to work on classification into topics and subtopics.

Hi Dobromir,

Looks good! I think it's wise to include the BLM one based on this: <https://money.cnn.com/2017/09/27/media/facebook-black-lives-matter-targeting/index.html> (but I also want to recognize that there are MANY legitimate people who are using that to express their rights). No specific accounts, [REDACTED]

Thank you all so much.

V/R,

Hello [REDACTED],

Hope you are doing fine. I am going to run this project for you :)

Below are the steps we need to take to launch the project:

1. A list of key-words for collecting tweets. We need a wide list of words related to the topics of interest to you - we will collect tweets containing these phrases. I've prepared a basic list. Could you supplement it with phrases that should be included in particular topics? I mean the words that you yourself use to find news and information on these topics (this is tab 1 in attachment "Step 1 - keywords")
2. A list of topics and subtopics. Once we have a collection of tweets based on the keywords (point 1), we need to classify them into appropriate topics and sub-topics. In order to increase the readability of the data, we suggest, in addition to the 5 proposed topics, to create sub-topics. Here, we need your support to classify it in such a way that is convenient for you. Please write down the sub-topics that should be included within each topic. A short description of the topics and sub-topics would be also useful. The better we understand the (sub)topics - the more precise and accurate classification we will be able to create (this is tab 2 "Step 2 – topics" – we prepared some examples, but you do not have to stick with it).

3. In the meantime, we are preparing our IT infrastructure to launch this project.

Let me know if you have any questions.

Best,

Aga
